Could this, too, be love seeking its way?

Explanation of the choice:
Let love shine, in work and duties. That which is done in love endures.

Quote:
"But what would it be like if I made room for something that has long been there? If I opened myself up to the divine – something greater than myself, yet at the same time is deeply present and at work within me? To the urge of love that seeks a way out in you and me."
